

4 Steps to More Effective Entity Governance A Roadmap to Entity Governance Maturity

As the keepers of the corporate record, the general counsel (GC) and legal operations department are uniquely positioned to serve as strategic advisors. Managing multiple entities and maintaining compliance across multiple jurisdictions gives them deep insight into risk management. Meanwhile, their work across the enterprise allows them to spot proactive opportunities for growth.

Here's a roadmap for how GCs can turn their advantageous perspective into a strategic superpower – and practice mature, modern governance within their organizations.

START Begin the path to mature entity management by centralizing your corporate data

Create a single source of truth

Your organization will spot and act on opportunities faster if all departments are drawing from the same data well. The right entity governance solution should provide:

Entity information

Access up-to-date data on locations, licenses and more—without duplications or gaps.

Director and officer information

Know instantly who's who and where each entity fits in your corporate structure.

Secure file storage

Lower your risk of revenue- and reputation-damaging leaks.

Single sign-on and multi-factor authentication

Make data access easy for authorized users and impossible for those without the right permissions.

Audit trail

Give all authorized users the power to fulfill information requests.

Reporting

Eliminate bottlenecks and deficiencies to deliver reports with greater speed and accuracy.
